In 1880, for instance, the abuse of the law was unusually bold and extensive. Out in Indiana Colonel Dudley, then ARTISTIC assortment of RELIABLE garments to be found in the city. All at OUR usual low prices.

Out in Indiana Colonel Dudley, then marshal, stretched his power to appoint deputies to the utmost extent. They thronged every election district in the State, and lined the Ohlo River under the pretext of preventing the Democratis from colonizing votera from Kentucky, but in reality to run negroes across. They were less plentifut but still numerous beyond all need, along the Ohlo, Michigan and Illinois boarders. The State election was held boarders. The State election was held in October that year. So grossly parti-in October that year. So grossly parti-san was he and to such an extent did Colonel Dudley misuse his power as marshal that he and Judge Gresham, then district judge, who wanted a fair and honest election, quarrele I.

The same sort of thing was done in New York, under the lead of the noto-rious John I. Davenport.

The Democrats protested against this cutrageous partisan perversion of the law, but in vain. When they came in power Attorney-General Garland issued an order limiting the number of such officials and the period of their services when appointed for election times and purposes. The order was generally obeyed, except in New York city. There Davenport and actiously disregarded it. The order directed that such deputies should not be paid for exceeding five days' services. The claims of Davenport's Republican corruptionists for extra time were not Gariand remained in office. His successor, however, and as a matter of course, pald them.

And now Attorney-General Miller has rescinded the order, and partisan marshals are playing the old corrupt game for all it is worth. Democratic ongressmen declare they will oppose the appropriation to pay these Republi celers masquerading as deputy marshals.

An Atroclous Murcer Mystery in Loudon Is "Jack the Ripper" at His Flendish Work Again ?

LONDON, Oct. 25 .- The condition of the body of the woman found at South Hempstead indicates that her murder was the most fiendlah of any that has occurred in Eegland since Jack the Ripper's horrible White Chapel series. haracter of the wounds clearly establishes the fact that the woman was stabled by some one behind her, after which her prostrate body was hacked and slashed simost into pieces. The scene of the crime is a lonely part of a section inhabited by the lowest class of abandoned women.

It is supposed to be frequently parrolled by the police, but the constables themselves admit that they perform that duty, with feelings of trepidation, and the suspicion srises that the rounds are not as aften made as they ought to be. The belief is general that the murdels in the suspicion of the susp der is the work of the "Ripper," who has changed the scene of his crimes, in order to baille the police. The police are tracking a man, who was seen to enter a hansom cab near the place where the body was found and drive away at a furious pace, and are confident that they will yet run blm down. The inhabitants in the vicinity of the scene of the murder are intensely ex-cited over the affair and remain indoors as much as possible.

Lendon, Oct. 25 .- Medical experts have made a careful examination of the body of the woman who was last night found mardered in an obscure alley of a remote neighborhood in South Hampstead. The examination shows the murder to have been committed in manner not characteristic of "Jack the Ripper," and also negatives the suggesthen that the victim was of the White Chapel type, which has thus far fur-nished the "Ripper's" prey. The body, which is that of a woman pparently about 30 years of age, was slad in material, the texture and cut of a person of some refinement. The underothing was found to be marked, a fact upon which the police place great stress as furnishing a clue to the discovery of

When the body was found it was seen that the woman's throat had been cut and the skull fractured. Her pockets discovered an empty perambulator con-taining a blood stained for rug.

The officials surmise that the peram-bulator was used to carry the body of the victim from the place where the murder was committed to the point where it was found. The Czar has summoned a cabinet council to consider the internal affairs of the Empire, and, it is understood. proposes to appoint another commission to investigate the Jewish problem in Russia, the Czar never having been

The Wheels of Justice Glide Smoothly and Rapidly .-- A Melange of Minor Cases Quickly Settled.

When the Police Court convened at the Sixth Precinct Station this morning, Mr. Campbell Carrington formaily announced the death of William B. Snell to the court, and made some very appropriate remarks as to the accepta ble maner in which he had acted as Judge of the Police Court for so many years. He referred to him as an honest impartial judge and a man who was beld in high esteem by the bar of the District and the public generally. Judge Miller responded in a feeling way, and said that the announcement of the ex judge's death was a complete surprise to him, as he had not tearned of it until he came in from his Takoma home this morning.

PROVIDED WITH A RETREAT. Business was then proceeded with in the usual order. George Smith was charged by Officer Brown with being a vagrant, and Dennis McCarthy of 700 Fifteenth street northeast swore that he had stolen his overcost and hat. The Pleasant Day Draws a Large Number of Ladies-British Visitors Admira Our Horseflesh - Gossip.

The clear weather and bright skies of the day, together with the number of zens in the county and one of the excellent entries, attracted a large crowd earliest settlers, took with him to the to the Benning race track to-day. The grand stand. The bright sun had dried the race track somewhat, and it presented an agreeable contrast to the river of mud in which the horses floundered around resterday. The favorites to-day, it is hardly necessary to say, were not the

'road borses." The grand stand was filled with an enthusiastic crowd of spectators, among them Is ing many well know fashionables of Washington, and here and there might be seen ruddy faced Britons decorated with the plain metal badge of the Iron and Steel Institute, and enjoying the sport with all the zest with which a horse loving Englishman is capable.

An excellent eard was reseased to An excellent card was presented to-day, and the large fields in each race added unusual interest and excitement to the events. Following is a summary of the day: Pirst race, six turlongs-Sequence celt, 168, Hill, 10 and 4. Shales coll, 168, Scott, 15 and 6. Cerberos, 168, Day. 1 and 2; Lowlander, 108, Taylor, 7,2 and 8.5; Bellevue, 108, Stoval, 4 and 8.5; Benjamin, 108, Ray, 10 and 4;
